SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

The Firelight Sweetheart.

She comes to me often and often,
As I sit by the grate alone—

My dear little firelight sweetheart.

With a face that is like your own. She's beckening there in the embers, And saucily hedding her head, In a flickering frock of crimson And a tiny, wee tippet of red,

Those quivering, scarlet streamers
Are the ribbons she loves to wear;
And that radiant, glowing coronal
Is a poppy she put in her hair.
Can't you see her daintily brushing
That tossing, stray lock from her brow—
Down there where the coals are the brightest.
Where they radiest one fell just now?

Where that reddest one fell just now?

And now she is archly smiling,
As she roguishly beckons again
In the door of a little red cottage
At the turn of a little red lane.
And now she has come to the window
Where a clambering fiame-vine clings
And the nurmuring croon of the embers
Is a love song that she sings.

And ever and ever she cheers me And ever and ever she cheers me
As I sit by the grate alone—
My dear little firelight sweetheart
With a face that is like your own,
As there in the dancing doorway
She saucily nods her head,
In a flickering frock of crimson
And n tiny, wee tippet of red.

OOK in my face; my name is Might Have Been; I am also called No More, Too Late, Farewell; Unto thine ear I hold the dead seashell Cast up thy Life's foam-crested feet between; Unto thine eyes the glass where that is seen Which had Life's form and Love's, but by my spell

Is now a shaken shadow intolerable, Of ultimate things unuttered the frail screen Mark me, how still I am! But should there dart One moment through my soul the soft surprise Of that winged Peace which lulls the breath of sighs,

Then shalt thou see me smile, and turn apart Thy visage to mine ambush at thy heart Sleepless with cold, commemorative eyes.

The bowl, which was hewn out of Virginia white murble, weighs about 100 pounds. Two rudely carved handles stand out by which it can be carried, while two trough-like furrows give facility for emptying it. A wide ledge runs around the rim, upon which rest the glasses while being filled. It is said to hold ten gullons of liquid. Resting in its depths is a monster oak postle, supposed to have a monster oak pestle, supposed to have been used, as a lemon squeezer. It weighs four pounds, and is shaped at the ends like a potato masher of ancient weighs like a potato masher of ancient design.

The bowl bears as a certificate of its authenticity an old parchment signed by Mrs. Agnes Thurman, of Albemarle county, Va., which says that the bowl was once the property of Mr. Jefferson, and was purchased by her husband, John Rogers, at the big vendue at Monticello, after Mr. Jefferson's death, in 1820.

The bowl first attracted Mr. Bryan's attention some years ago, when he was in Virginia, and was given a reception at the home of Judge Grimsley. The bowl was then filled with lemonade and at once impressed Mr. Bryan by its age. On finding that it had once belonged to Thomas Jofferson, Mr. Eryan determined to some day become its owner. The bowl now occupies a place of state upon an oak table in the hall at "Fairview," Mr. Bryan's home, and above it hangs a spiendid portrait of Mr. Jefferson.

Chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy. Chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy, yesterday. The statement was made at the close of a meeting of the chapter, at which a number of reports from the various booths were received. "The total receipts so far reported." Mrs. Elliott continued, "show a clear balance of about $1.500 above expenses of $244. There are still a number of articles to be raffled, and the returns from these, we anticipate, will bring the profit up to about $1,500. ill a number of articles to be raffled, and the returns from these, we ancipate, will bring the profit up to about 5000. The Texas booth, over which Mrs. The Texas booth, over which Mrs.

Other members of the chapter express-ed themselves in much the same vein as did Mrs. Elliott, rejoicing that they have raised such a splendid sum toward the completion of the shaft erected in Comwho gave up their lives for the cause they loved.

The meeting this week of the Daughters was a most felicitous one. Aside from the gradifying reports in regard to the bazaur, resolutions thanking Hone-Murry Chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy, for their efforts in behalf of the bazant were adopted. Hope-Maury Chapter, besides assisting in many ways, Chapter, besides assisting in many ways, donated a handsome picture of three Confederate flags, which was raffied and won by Mrs. T. A. Jones. At the meeting this picture was presented by Mrs, Jones to Pickett-Buchanan Chapter, and will be placed on the wall of the chapter room.

Another gratifying incident of the meeting was the receipt of a check for $200 from the Howard Association, one of the oldest charitable institutions of the city. This amount was donated to the fund for the roller of the widows and orphans of Confederate veterans, one of the principal objects of the Daughters of Confederacy being administering to the needs of this class.

Yards in Search of Food.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
ARVONIA, VA., Dec. 14.—Last night was one of the coldest experienced here in several years, the thermometer going to seven degrees below zero, and remaining in that frigid neighborhood throughout the early morning.

Extremely cold weather has prevailed here since last Friday night, when the first snow began to fall. On Baturday night, after the storm had passed, the thermometer went down to zero. Sunday night was also bitterly cold, and Monday another snow storm set in, with temperature down far below the freezing point. Last night capped the climax in low temperatures. If the air had not been exceedingly still there would have been much suffering among the poor poople who live in open and hadly constructed houses.

The uniform layer of snow, so closely packed to the ground, will no doubt cause the starvation of many birds and sinall game, unless the people will make an effort to feed them. The rabbits have wirendy sheer forced out of their shelter to seek food close up around the houses.

Their tracks this morning are everywhere about the kitchen doors and front dooryards.

The limmonse slate quarries here have been amost if not quite idle since the snow storm set in. To-day it is too cold for the saltemakers to hundle skele instruments and too bad in the quarry were the only ones that made an attempt to work to-day, and they with a depleted torce of hands.
